For the second time in less than a month, fans of the Buffalo Bills have been forced to evacuate the AT&T Stadium in Dallas after a massive fire engulfed the stadium. In the words of one fan, it's like "something out of a movie." A fan of the #Bills was literally right next to the fire. She said, "It's like something out of a movie." pic.twitter.com/7PKtgSQpoS — Jon Machota (@jonmachota) July 24, 2017 DALLAS, TX (WKBW) - A 13-acre brush fire near downtown Dallas broke out during the Dallas Cowboys game against the Arizona Cardinals Sunday evening. It was a big game for both teams because of the playoff race and the NFC East title. A huge swarm of emergency vehicles could be seen from miles away. Two nearby restaurants had to close down. Here's what it looks like inside the AT&T Stadium right now. The fire was initially reported around 6:30 p.m. It grew to cover half the size of the stadium in about 15 minutes. "There was a game going on and we started smelling something and it was very scary when it was going over into the stadium," said Audra Walton, fan. "When the fire alarms went off it was pretty terrifying." People started taking to social media to share footage from the game. "Really anxious until it got past us," said the fan who was with us. "I just hope it don't do this again." "This is beyond scary," said another fan. Emergency crews found no one hurt and there were no evacuations. The Dallas Fire Department says it got the fire under control in about 45 minutes and no injuries were reported. "It's kind of sad," said the fan who was there. "No one getting hurt, no one getting hurt." Luckily the power didn't go out and we were able to use our phone cameras to help us share the images. "You get a lot of eyes and ears on the field and you have a lot of people to make sure that everybody's safe and we have a lot of people to make sure that we get it under control," said Hal Jackson with the Dallas Fire Department. Bills fans were also watching the game when the fire broke out.
