Anupam Kher, Saumya Tandon, Javed Jaffrey, Amruta Khanvilkar, Ashmit Patel, Asrani and others from the Gunday movie soundtrack. Anupam.The present invention relates to an automobile locking system, and particularly to a system which locks the doors and trunk of an automobile by releasing electrical connectors between the automobile and a distributor or alternator located on the ground. A number of anti-theft systems of the type to which the present invention is directed are known. For example, U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,193,971 and 3,203,511, both to Finkelmeier, disclose circuitry for applying the brakes of a locked vehicle. In the Finkelmeier patents, a control circuit connects battery power to the ignition circuit of a vehicle. A relay in the circuit releases the solenoid of an engine lock switch if a power interruption occurs. If the power interruption is

Public service continues to go unfunded. Yet, within the government there are two interpretations of the fiscal cliff: one, that we must leap off the cliff; and the other, to jump off the cliff is a sign that we're failing to address the problem. The latter is further evidenced by budget cuts that will be a touchy subject between those who spend the money and those who have to deal with the outcome of those cuts. In simple terms, while as far as the media is concerned the fiscal cliff equals a government failure, a successful negotiation will not have resulted in the mass layoffs that are now being floated around Capitol Hill as possible fiscal cliff negotiations.

Negotiations are like a game. A game allows for both winners and losers, but only winners can say that they won. The winner is defined as the last party standing. Winners are the ones that recognize a win when they see one. In a game of negotiation, if the other side plays weakly, the winner will have to play even weaker to justify his win. Negotiations work best when there is a lot of interest by each side. Both sides are forced to give something of importance in order to receive something else. If one side is hell bent on playing for a win, it may be willing to sacrifice to be able to claim a win. In the House, the Tea Party's clout is most visible in the insistence on defunding President Obama's health care plan. As the U.S. government is unable to muster a counter-play because the Tea Party has demanded a win on its terms, the U.S. government is forced to give something. In the Senate, the Tea Party's clout is less apparent, but in

Chinese man challenges communism as the state-approved ideology CHINA/ENGLEWOOD | Jul. 3, 2008 Mark Schiefelbein By Susan Carey, Bloomberg News The Communist Party brought him face-to-face with his ideals. A bearded, middle-aged man in a Mao suit joined a long line outside the gates of a modest building in this factory town, about 90 miles from Beijing. He was one of the first to file in this month to receive his copy of the People's Daily newspaper and learn how to live in an officially approved way. The man's choice of attire is quintessential for his news, said Xiao Ya, who stood in line Wednesday with her daughter, 19. "It's free and it's for the people and it has a message of love and peace," she said. "It is the government's way of teaching us to live more harmoniously, more responsibly. We are the Communist Party's most active students." It's the latest way for the party to reach out to citizens, said Xiao Zhi, a 33-year-old teacher from Xiamen, and founder of the online China Discussion Forum. A Mao suit has its meaning in China, where official portraits of Mao Zedong still adorn schools and government buildings. "What the state does, the Communist Party does," Xiao said. "That is the source of China's stability." At Mao's birthday and memorial rallies this year, government leaders, senior officials and schoolchildren wore the traditional
