The game is a beat'em up space arcade game with a story line, I didn't complete the game. The gameplay is to have Jobous the alien (the hero) travel through space and shoot aliens and obstacles like the funny dog, old fat guy and many more. The player can be a space warrior or spaceship commander. you can also fly Jobous the alien on your own spaceship. in each level you will encounter many different enemies. there are 3 difficulty level. Space Shooter With Beat'em up feel Space Arcade With Story Line Space Adventure With Hero Space Fighter With Beat'em up feel Space Vehicle With Hero ship. I will add new content and more levels as I progress but I don't have a set release date. so until then you should enjoy this game with an older junky graphics. but I am also create a steam game with an improved graphics. If you do want to play the finished game you can find it here: what do you think? did you enjoy this game? would you like a new version with better graphics and a better story line? comment below and let me know. have a good day. PS:If you want to support the channel and get special rewards you can purchase these awesome toys in the minipage below. comment on this video: find him on social media: make sure you like and subscribe his channel for space video. he is also working on a new game and I will add the new video as soon as it is ready. here is a link to the player page on xbox or play station

What's new:

Question Description: After seeing a youtube clip of a man and a woman playing Chinese chess, I learned two interesting bits of trivia. 1. The male and female pieces, while obviously representing the Chinese Stone and Water God, are actually named after cities in China. What do you think the game pieces might represent for a Western-influenced game or its variants like Elephant, Su, Cheon, Seon or Ta? 2. A variation of the game they play in that video was apparently played at the Tang Dynasty in China. And which Taoist deities are represented in the game? I am completely fascinated to learn what the pieces and game might represent for a Western audience, and whether the game goes back to an earlier, more variant form, and if and when it evolved further to its current form. 12 Answers 12 If it was just myself, I would have guessed that they're indigenous to the places they're named for, but that didn't even occur to me first and only when I was typing it up. I have no idea what the bottom two are. The top ones (which have the most Chinese-sounding names) are an elephant-like figure, a male (4) and a female (5) figure perhaps representing the two animal (male/female) pairs. Take in mind that, according to the Lettisch-chinese dictionary (p. 373), the yuan of the character for elephant "mast"(gao) is an elephant, while the yuan of the character for male/female is used in a famous couplet of - probably Buddhist - origin: There is indeed a quarter-century-long history behind the Elephant Game, but it stems from the Tang Empire in China, which was also the time when both chess and tea were introduced into China. One of the most influential rulers of the Tang dynasty was Li Yu. He was a staunch supporter of Buddhism and a great patron of arts and science and was a founder of the University of Taipei. Li Yu was fascinated with chess and in 754 AD he wrote a book on the subject, named Shen Nong's In-juu Ma Bu Qu (translation from Wu Xiaobing's book The chess and the tea), which included a section on Elephant Game. This was the earliest known text on chess. Quite possibly similar to the Elephant Game from the Tang dynasty known to be played in Mongolia. @Blue

Your Bombers' home is the skies. It may be cold and lonely out there, but it's your home and you take care of it. Your aircraft are all about power and speed and taking the fight to the enemy. So be careful, because the mission is dangerous, and it requires an equally fast response. You'll be called upon to fill multiple roles. Fly Reconnaissance, drop ordnance, defend against air-to-air and air-to-ground threats. The sky is your domain. Your mission is to take your Bomber's capabilities to the next level by unlocking the following 3 exclusive skins: - Over The Rainbow - A tribute to the classic Casanova paint job, this heavily modified paint job provides a huge increase in speed, and new weapons and equipment choices. - Golden Eagle - A tribute to the World War 2-era "Tail-End Charlie," this modified paint job provides awesome acceleration, and an almost unlimited ammo loadout. - Dark Knight Black - A tribute to the popular 'Black Eagle' paint job that inspired many after it was first introduced into the War Thunder skies in the very early days of the community. This paint job provides the highest base speed in War Thunder, along with a very wide selection of equipment and new exotic weaponry. The Bomber Skin Pack is meant to be a bit of a tester - to be able to see how the new skins work in the game. We will very likely be re-evaluating the paint jobs in the future and expect to change the color scheme of skins, so make sure you back up your skins on your FTP! All of the skins will be assigned correctly to the appropriate slot in the Vehicle Tabs, which you can find by default in your 'Missions' menu. Features of the Bomber Skin Pack: - 10 instant new skins for your Bomber, including 3 variants. - All of the skins are assigned correctly to the appropriate slot in the Vehicle Tabs, so please make sure you back up your skins on your FTP! - Can be applied to all types of mediums in-game - even Powerplay and Dynamic campaigns. - Patch 1.05.2 included. Skins are in beta testing phase and have not been verified by any official testing team. Photos of the skin in action will be available after our official release. What's new in update 1.05.2:

Democrats offer AG nominees to Trump
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Democratic senators have nominated two women for attorney general and three for a third acting job in President Donald Trump's cabinet. The nominations come as the White House has struggled to fill key administration posts, including top roles at the Justice Department and Defense Department. The nominees still require Senate confirmation.
