Every weekend, my family and I go. Breadcrumb navigation Archives for January, 2017 Contact and accident insurance are essential for small business owners and for good reason. A new report from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) shows that within the first 12 months of ownership, 70% of small business owners file an insurance claim. And in the second year, that claim ratio jumps to 88%. Consumers may be forgiven for thinking that they can have their property insurance without having to carry a mortgage. But this is not the case. In 2015, the cost of insuring a primary residence in the United States (including property taxes and closing costs) was an astonishing $8,700. Time is short on the issue of limited competition in the auto insurance market, and the NAIC is reporting on the issue as it prepares to create new guidelines for state boards of insurance. While the auto insurance marketplace is not as overtly competitive as health care, the overall lack of competition—or at least more competition—is still prevalent in the auto insurance market. Let's say you're a business owner, and you want a new bookkeeper. If you're like most business owners, you don't want someone who's incompetent, but you also don't want to make yourself the bookkeeper for the business. Instead, you want a bookkeeper who is smart and capable. Financial instability is one of the biggest business risks that companies face. Business owners face a number of risks that range from the chance that a key employee will leave the company to the chance that the company itself will fail.

Q: How to verify filepath parameter is a directory? I want to verify the input is a directory name. I tried: `$test = dirname $1 if(!$test) { ... }` But no luck so far. What am I doing wrong? A: Short answer: you can't.

When you consider the directory name is passed to `dirname`, its contents are also passed to it. Since neither directory nor file name contents have a null path component, the function must truncate those so the
