There is a social aspect to autism that means that not all friends and family are the same, and you can't possibly explain to them what is going on or how it affects [...] Autism. Autism Spectrum Disorder. Special Needs. It's all so dang confusing and overused nowadays. The names don't make much sense to the average Joe, who has experienced neither the symptoms nor the stigma associated with autism. It doesn't mean that you are crazy or that you're broken. It just means you are different from everyone else in [...] Q: Loading GAE blobs datastore I created a datastore - and then created a blob store and set up some blobs, but when I attempt to load a blob it returns an error. Can someone help me with this? @app.route('/index') def index(): try: blobstore_id = db.get_blobstore_id(application_id) blob_key = blobstore.create_gs_key(blobstore_id) blob = blobstore.Blob(key=blob_key) blob.put() return "Blob %s" % blob.key() except Exception, e: print 'Problem getting blobstore id' return "Error loading blob: %s" % e This is the error: google.appengine.api.datastore_errors.EntityNotFoundError: Blob with key () could not be found for application () A: This error means you're not referring to the correct blob key. You can get the BLOB KEY as described in the Blobstore docs (scroll down to 'Other Key Properties'). By using this, you can find the blob key and refer to it
